Lofos Edison is a residential estate in the municipality of Pallini, in Greater Athens. It was initially used as a Media Village during the Athens 2004 Olympic Games. After the Olympics the temporary internal installations were removed and replaced with permanent fixtures and fittings. Its high proportion of green space, its close proximity to transport networks, its design, and the facilities offered, all contributed to the achievement of top three status at the 2006 MIPIM awards. The covered area is 33.000 m², split in 202 apartments and maisonettes with areas from 100 m² to 250 m² inside a plot of 116.000 m², out of which 80.000 m² are green areas.
