Lofos Pallini -EDISON

Zeit-Studie	Budget (€)	Arbeitgeber
2002-2003	70,000,000.00	DOMI O.E.
	Besitzer	Position
	REDS SA	Pallini Attiki

Lofos Edison is a residential estate in the municipality of Pallini, in Greater Athens. It was initially used as a Media Village during the Athens 2004 Olympic Games. After the Olympics the temporary internal installations were removed and replaced with permanent fixtures and fittings. Its high proportion of green space, its close proximity to transport networks, its design, and the facilities offered, all contributed to the achievement of top three status at the 2006 MIPIM awards.
The covered area is 33.000 m2, split in 202 apartments and maisonettes with areas from 100 m2 to 250 m2 inside a plot of 116.000 m2, out of which 80.000 m2 are green areas.

Aerial View

Aerial View

Partial view from a walkway

Night view from apartment balcony

